

LOCKDOWN EXPRESS No 4

...and now... the fourth edition of the LOCKDOWN EXPRESS

Good news maybe. The PM is talking about getting prepared for Level 3. (but..... has stated quite clearly that we are not yet out of level 4)

So while we cannot, just yet, happily gather at our workshop for our usual sessions each week, the LOCKDOWN EXPRESS will continue as a means of club members staying connected and sharing woodturning ideas. There will be no expected publishing dates and no deadlines for emailing the LE to you as things will happen just as they happen to happen. Please continue emailing me photos of your turning projects. Cheers Clive

Still LOCKED in How many sleeps to go?

Are you running short of wood turning supplies?

No problem!

Terry Scott of Timberly Woodturning can help you with what you might need during the lockdown period.

You could give Terry a call and a couriered parcel will soon be on its way to you.

Check the Timberly catalogue and do your shopping online.

Two views of RICHARD JACKSON's Lidded bowl.

Skillfully turned from a block of rimu wood

SUPERB

I had to check my thesaurus to find enough superlatives to describe this work of art.

A stunner in every respect.

A sheer class act.

RESIN and MAHOGANY bowl by ROBERT WISELEY.

COLIN used deer antler to make his dinky-di spoon bowl after receiving the instructions for making from Terry Scott.

A polished mounting board and antler plinth takes it up another quality level.

RICHARD JACKSON is NEVER short of ideas to make something different.

Picture above shows a swamp kauri box in a redwood container.

Creative, clever and classy!

ROBERT WISELEY

A juniper wood platter with intertwining resin rings.

Can you figure out how Robert cut the grooves to accommodate the resin?

(think mathematically and about using technology and laser beams and stuff)

TURNING EXCELLENCE!

My 1926 Chevy truck kept me occupied for a while.

OK that's it for this edition. Keep sending me those photos for publishing in the next Lockdown Express.

Cheers Clive

Not yet verified but it sounds legitimate.

"A recent study found that women who carry a little extra weight live longer than the men who mention it."
