This week's woodturning news

Lots of absences this week maybe due to school holidays, ill health and other happenings disrupting our routines.

The Olympics opening ceremony officially opens the world's main sporting festival today. Let's hope that Mr. C. Ovid has minimal or no effect on all participants.

GO the KIWI teams and individuals!. The first record has been broken..... this is the shortest TT this year.

WAYNE used some claret ash wood to turn this nifty platter. This work was completed in just one session.....now that's super-quick time.

This week's STANDOUT

DAVID COWLEY used a length of very old Aussie hardwood rescued from an old power pole. Super-smooth finish to a very smart turning job.

CAELAN's Tassie blackwood bowl scores well with its silky-smooth finish and shape.

MICHAEL made a top job of fitting a round hinge to his totara wood ring box. A precision decision!

KAWHARU has achieved early success in his introductory basic skills programme.

A good eye for flowing lines.

Wow! STEPHEN O'CONNOR has turned a natty little ring box in the shape of an acorn. An exact-fitted round hinge completes a great job.
