Pride of Place for Jan's macrocarpa wood shallow bowl. This rather natty turning project was achieved through a team effort of JAN, JOHN BAKER and CLIVE

Take the lead and have another go next week Jan.

Now here's a super special. Goodonya ALAN. A special feature is the balance of colours with the light and dark splashes of grain. Tazzie blackwood and a keen turner at their best.

STEPHEN O'Connor used a block of clean oak wood to fashion this whiskey sampler jar.

The idea of the bulging base is to accommodate a good-sized dollop of the good stuff.

Eh?

Well, you can't tell by sampling just one mouthful.....it usually takes three or more!

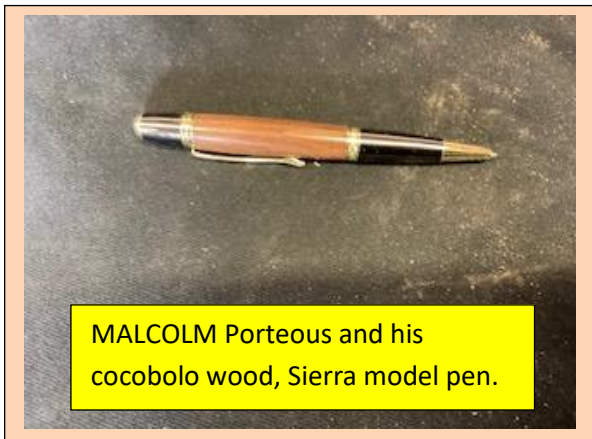

BILL's waistline designed pens

MICHAEL's continued experiment with wood colour contrasts. The purple heart appears to 'lift' the lighter coloured wood.

Vey neat small tool work to clear the throat of the turning.

A bit of an eyecatcher aye.

MALCOLM Porteous and his cocobolo wood, Sierra model pen.

ALEX Nelson rescued a huckery lump of black walnut that had been discarded.

After a short while on his lathe it became a beautiful whiz-bang turning project.

Just catch an eyeful of the colours, swirls and random splashes.

One man's junk is another man's treasure shares more information and technique with spirit-based colour dyes.

RICHARD JACKSON

Features include the blending of colours, a silky smooth finish and the flowing lines in its shape.

Made from TOTARA wood.

Many weeks ago MITCHELL set out to make a gizmo-gadget thingie to be used as a fire starter. Detailed drawings (Mitchell's special skill) drew out the thinking behind this project. Many hours were put into the exactness needed for the moving parts. Alas, Mitchell reluctantly surrendered when the "O"-ring experiment just wouldn't behave properly.

However, we now have a whistle.

DAVID has been busy with outside-in projects.

Here's a couple of successful items.

It may look a complicated process but our David manages it with ease.

MONIKA turned a length of clean totara wood into a very smart seasonal artifact..... a stylized Christmas tree.

ALISTAIR and JO, two newbie turners, have completed their very first bowl.

A good start to a satisfying wood turning journey.

Great finish applied.

WOW! Do we have a “good with wood” candidate here?

Our JO has been busy with the scroll saw making animal shapes for the toys for Christmas initiative.

Such accuracy!

Why did All Black coach FOZZIE take a sheet of paper and a pencil to the England - New Zealand rugby test match?

He was getting ready to draw.
